I would like to vioce my support NCVEC petition to drop the Morse code element 1 testing requirement. I agree that Morse has been important and can/ should still be used, it should not be required. The reason I gave always heard to support the Code was for international communications. The person on the other end, must still speak english to send and recieve the Code. So that doesn't really hode water.

The FCC should follow suit with the ITU and The rest of the world to drop the Morse code requirement for American General and Extra Class Licensure.

Respectfully Submitted.
